LOUISVILLE JOURNAL

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 3 A. M.

LOUISVILLE CITY COURT.

HON. J. HOPF PRICE ON THE BENCH.

How do I? Little human life.

Depressed by a dead body.

Saturday night and Sunday's imitation by the couriers and "faire vides" who swing about polite circles produced a full stock of busness for the aforementioned August tribunal. It's really a September tribunal now, but was it enough yesterday morning for August yesterday morning, and the lever went off at fol-

THE STATE FAIR.

OPENING DAY—EXHIBITION OF CATTLE, SHEEP AND HORSES; LIST OF PREMIUMS AND AWARDING COMMITTEE.

The ninth annual exhibition of the Kentucky State Agricultural Society commences to-day at the Fair Grounds of the County Agricultural and Mechanical Association, three and a half miles from the city. From what we know and have heard in relation to this fair, it is evident that the exhibitors of live stock and mechanical inventions will be more numerous than at any previous fair in this county, consequently, in the respect, the Society is bound to excel. To equalize the triumph of the fair, we hope our citizens will interest themselves in and encourage it by their presence daily. We hope the gratifying news that large numbers of people from the adjacent country will be in attendance, both as competitors and lookers-on. These people should be in full force at the fair on the premises, and made to feel that Louisville is the abode of hospitable hearts, and they here the strangers are verily at home.

A Rose and a Hill, not a primrose, however, nor a vine-clad hill, in Kate Hill and Cared Hill. They had been dreary and desolate, but the Hillimings' track on the same value. Sarah takes her hat to pay, and has paid $50.00 for sitting on ice-side," and Belie took the same amount. For trying to reverse positions, Win A. Jewell was paid $50 just for getting down.
